This webinar is designed specifically for tax and finance professionals working in the retail industry. During this one-hour session, you'll learn how Kelly-Moore Paint Company, Inc., the largest employee-owned paint company in the United States, learned how to take control of its sales and use taxes using a combination of technologies: the Retail.net Point of Sale (POS) solution from Tomax, Inc., and the Sales and Use Tax System from ADP.

You'll hear a first hand account from Carl Sweetland, Kelly-Moore's Vice President and CIO, as well as from Steve Klingler, Senior Vice President of Business Development at Tomax. You'll hear about the challenges that Kelly-Moore Paints faced, and how the company overcame them. The last 10 minutes of the presentation will be reserved for taking questions from the audience.

No one can say that Carl Sweetland doesn't know the Kelly-Moore Paint Company from top to bottom. It's a company where, over a period of 16 years, he progressed from being a front-line paint clerk all the way to head of the technology team. His degree is in elementary education, and he used those teaching skills to work with Kelly-Moore business teams to develop applications while moving the company forward. As a product manager for non-manufactured goods, he honed his computer skills by building reports and recoding forms to improve business productivity. In 1996, he joined KM's Information Systems department where he held a variety of roles including System Admin, Project Manager, Retail Systems Manager, Applications Manager, and then finally Vice President and CIO. Carl currently leads a team of 18 people in Information Systems.
