ACA Annual Reporting

While it’s referred to as Affordable Care Act (ACA) Annual Reporting, make no mistake – this is more than an annual event. Preparing ACA forms requires ongoing, monthly preparation. Starting early to gather the right data is key to success.

Here’s what you need to know...

Don’t Fear the Forms

The IRS requires employers to file two forms annually: Forms 1094-C and 1095-C.

Completing two forms may seem easy, but getting data from multiple systems to complete them is the challenge, whether you’re doing it in-house or outsourcing.

When are the ACA reporting forms due?

Data must be recorded each month. So now’s the time.

What if you get ACA reporting wrong?

The penalties for noncompliance can add up quickly.
