A 15-Year Partnership That Lifts the Bottom Line

We were constantly paying fees for penalties

We were doing payroll through a local payroll provider and keeping up with local tax information through California's Employment Development Department. But you have to be a specialist in payroll to keep track of all the regulation and tax changes, and then you're prone to make mistakes, and those mistakes are subject to penalties and interest.

We were constantly paying fees for penalties and interest for errors. It was a very difficult experience. And then, somebody said, "Why don't you try to outsource this work?"

We considered running payroll through our banks, but they were not as well-known and experienced as ADP®, and that was important to us. ADP was — and still is — one of the biggest payroll-processing entities, so we decided to try them out first.

It's well worth the investment

Soon after we got set up, we stopped having the pain that we were experiencing before. They are, by far, the best thing that happened to processing payroll.

That was 15 years ago. We started very small, only doing basic payroll entry, but over the years I've seen them become much more sophisticated, offering a comprehensive program for HR and healthcare services. It's well worth the investment.

Using ADP has absolutely affected our bottom line. Payroll is just about the largest expense for any organization, and your time is too valuable to be doing the detail work. I am always telling people, anybody who is ever facing payroll, to use ADP.

Keeping up with state and local taxes is tough for any business to do without help. For Digicom Electronics, a manufacturer of custom equipment for medical, military and aerospace companies, it was becoming expensive too. After tiring of the fees and penalties, President Mo Ohady decided to look for help.
