

For the sixth year in a row, ADP’s Midwest Local Diversity Council participated in the Chicago Cares “Serve-A-Thon,” the largest single day of service in Chicago, on June 15, 2013.

Many of the city neighborhoods in Chicago have been challenged by violence, and the Chicago Cares organization serves as a catalyst for positive change in these underserved communities through volunteerism.

The council recruited 147 ADP associates to help with volunteer projects that beautify classrooms, school libraries, playgrounds, and parks. This year, ADP volunteers boarded a bus to Farragut High School on Chicago’s West Side, where they painted hallways, the gymnasium, classrooms, and several murals to help complete the school’s landscaping project. Not only did this project help schools in need, it also served as a great team-bonding experience for our associates.

ADP is a proud corporate sponsor of the Chicago Cares “Serve-A-Thon,” which helps address Chicago’s most critical challenges. Through this meaningful partnership, our associates are able to bring our corporate values to life. Furthermore, we applaud all those who volunteered their time at the “Serve-A-Thon” and encourage more to do the same next year.
